A Little Family History

Grandma Pollard started her baking career at the age of sixteen in Todmorden Centre working for two sisters in a small retail bakery and cafeteria called Shaw House on Halifax Road. The two sisters were quite fond of Grandma Pollard and she was extremely lucky that they were kind enough to pass on their baking skills to her.

Grandma Pollard and her husband Cyril had 4 children, Roy the eldest, Barbara the only daughter, Geoffrey and of course TONY the fish fryer today.

Grandma Pollard and her family started in the premises known today as Grandma Pollard's Chippy on the 3rd August 1957, over 57 years ago, when her family were then introduced to the world of fish and chips and she added her expertise, i.e. home made pies and famous vanilla slices to the existing business of fish and chips.

Her young family showed great interest in this business, and she therefore passed her knowledge on to all of them, and to this day her youngest son TONY is still at home on the range frying his fresh HADDOCK & CHIPS with a tasty dab.
